Artist's edition and long-term project, photography (2008–2020):

My long-term project is set to run for twelve years and form a trilogy. The first part, “Johnnie Walker” on the beach, published in 2014, was dedicated to people. The second part, entitled “‘Black & White’ with Friends” (2019), follows animals and their tracks through the human world. The third part “Jack Daniels and Mister Freud” (2022) is dedicated to night-time and twilight. It is an encyclopaedic undertaking, spanning all continents, whose object is to gauge what it is to be human – today and right now and per se. People – animals – night: the inner logic of this ongoing narrative is as captivating as it is convincing.

My extended, deep, photofilmic narrative style (sequences), over hundreds or thousands of pages, is inspired by the Japanese story mangas, so that viewers are immediately “in the middle of it”.
